ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS

REWARD.

RANAWAY from the subscriber on the 29th of October last, a negro man slave named BOB,

about 20 years of age, five feet nine inches high straight limbed and well formed; said slave hath an impediment in his speech which prevents his readily replying to a question. He commonly wears ear-rings. He took with him a variety of good cloathing, a description of which is unnecessary, as it is probable he has changed them. He has been frequently seen about town since he absconded, and in all probability is now secreted by his mother, Winney Brown, formerly the slave of Mr. JOHN MUIR, late of this town, but now said to be free. The above reward will be paid for securing said Negro BOB, in any goal, and a further reward of TEN DOLLARS for the discovery of those who have been accessory to his concealment.

Captains of vessels, &c. are forewarned at their peril, not to take him away.

CONGRESS

UNITED STATES.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, December 8.

Debate on the AMENDMENT to the CONSTITUTION.

But further, Mr. Speaker, another reason which as it is a point of delicacy to mention, I previously declare that I consider it as having reference to no individual only myself. I make no doubt but every gentleman on this floor, can reconcile the part he takes in this business, with the utmost purity of intention. But so far as it respects myself the consideration of taking a solemn oath to support the constitution of the United States is of considerable weight. I cannot see how I could act consistently in taking such an oath to-day; and endeavouring to introduce an alteration in one of its most important principles and provisions to-morrow.

It further appears to me, that should alterations in our national compact become really necessary, this house, or even both houses of Congress, are the most improper of all places to originate them. That the Senate and House of Representatives have a jointly, constitutional right to originate amendments, is a point not to be contested. But in allusion to a remark which, upon another occasion, fell from a gentleman, who occupies a conspicuous station upon the floor of this house, that there were certain provisions or powers in the constitution, which Congress never had exercised, and which probably there would be no occasion to exercise, and which he hoped never would be exercised, I am free to declare it as my opinion the power of originating amendments to the constitution, ought to be the last of all constitutional powers to be put in practice. If any thing in the world approaches to a solecism in practice, it is a legislative body engaged in enlarging, altering, varying, or narrowing the sphere of their own powers.

I further observe, that, after hearing this subject discussed largely in this house, when it was first under consideration, and occasionally attending debates in the Senate, after patiently attending to the discussions on the different arrangements, adjustments, and modifications of the proposed amendment, which as all are sensible, has proved a subject of no small difficulty; I could not but feel a degree of surprise to find that, in the course of such a lengthy discussion, not so much as one solitary argument should be advanced in support of the general principle of the resolution. It seemed to me as if the importance of the designating principle was in the view of its advocates, one of those self-evident propositions, which were in themselves so plain as to be incapable of any illustration by proofs. I am free to confess that I am not possessed of that intuitive knowledge, which enable me to discover either the importance or correctness of the principle. Before I can vote for it I must have some sound convincing argument in its favor.

It is true, some attempts of this kind have been made in an advanced stage of the discussion, first by a gentleman from Virginia, afterwards by a gentleman from Pennsylvania, and lastly by another gentleman from Tennessee. But when I reflect upon the acknowledged talents of these gentlemen, I cannot but be affected with some degree of surprise that a measure of so much importance should be prosecuted with such a degree of zeal while supported with such superficial arguments. My design is merely to state my own reasons for voting against the resolution, and not to answer arguments in favor of it. I shall only briefly mention one which appears to be principally relied on, viz. that it is the voice or will of the people. I know not of a more equivocal phrase in the English language than this; "the voice or will of the people." Gentlemen I presume will not assert that the voice of the multitude but too frequently formed upon a sudden impulse, and ever fluctuating, which is one thing to-day and another to-morrow; changing many times by the breath of some popular demagogue who is disposed to make this voice a hobby-horse to serve a turn, can furnish any solid basis either for legislation or the fermentation of a national compact. But it is said that this voice has been expressed by the constitutional organ, by the legislatures of the several states from time to time. We are referred back to New-Hampshire and South-Carolina, to New-York and Vermont, to federal and republican states, and to the same state when federal and when republican. If the distinction between federal and republican, is meant merely to discriminate the two great political parties into which the United States have been principally divided, it is acknowledged some terms must be used for that purpose. Whether this is the most proper I pretend not to say. I presume the term is not meant to convey an idea that those who choose to call themselves republicans are so exclusively, and that all others are opposed to a republican government. Such a distinction is better adapted to a discussion in a party newspaper than to the floor of this house. I give full faith and credit to that gentleman when he says he is a republican, and that the state of Pennsylvania which he represents is a republican state. But will the gentleman assert that the state of Massachusetts is not equally republican, and that the representatives of that state upon this floor are not republican as well as those from Pennsylvania? No I trust not. I am willing to go hand in hand with that gentleman in favor of real practical republicanism. I hope to live and die under a republican government. I know of no state in the union which is not a republican state, nor any periods of the union in which they were otherwise; and I know of no member upon this floor who is any other than a republican, nor of any prevailing party in the United States opposed to a republican government.

PLOT AGAINST BONAPARTE.

ARREST OF MOREAU.

LEGISLATIVE BODY.

Paris, February 17.

At two o'clock the counsellors of state Reignaud, De St. Jean D'Angely, Segur, and Berlier, were introduced. Reignaud ascended the tribune, and read the following report made this morning by the grand judge to the first consul:

Report of the Grand Judge to Government.

PARIS, 27th Pluviose.

"Citizen First Consul.

"New plots have been framed by England; they were framed in the midst of the peace she had sworn to maintain—and when she violated the treaty of Amiens, she relied much less upon her force than upon the success of her machinations. But the government was watchful—the eye of the police followed all the steps of the enemy's agents, and traced the measure of those whom their gold or their intrigues had corrupted.

"At length the plan appeared complete; already, no doubt, they thought at London that they heard the explosion of that mine which had been dug under our feet. At least the most sinister rumors were in circulation there, and the most guilty hopes were cherished.

"All at once the framers of the conspiracy are seized—proofs accumulate, and of such force and evidence, that they will carry conviction to every mind.

"Georges, and his band of assassins, had remained in the pay of England—his agents still over-run La Vendee, the Morbihan and the Cotes du Nord, and vainly sought for partisans—the moderation of the government and the laws had deprived them of them.

"Pichegru, unmasked by the events which preceded the 18th of Fructidor, year 5, unmasked more than any thing by that correspondence which general Moreau had addressed to the directory—Pichegru had carried his hatred against this country into England.

"In the year 8 he was with Willot, in the suit of the enemy's armies, in order to ally himself with the brigands of the South.

"In the year 9 he conspired with the committee of Barentz;—and since the peace of Amiens, he was still the counsel and the hope of the enemies of France.

"British perfidy associates Georges with Pichegru; the infamous Georges with that Pichegru whom France had esteemed, and whom she long believed to be incapable of treason.

"In the year 12 a criminal reconciliation unites Pichegru and general Moreau, two men between whom honor ought to have placed an eternal hatred. The police seizes at Calais one of their agents at the moment he was returning a second time to England. That man is in the hands of the police, with all the papers which establish the reality of a reconciliation that would have been in explicable if the fact of it had not been formed by crime.

"At the arrest of this agent general Moreau appears for a moment agitated. He takes under-hand measures to ascertain whether government is informed upon the subject; but every thing is still and silent, and restored himself to tranquility, he conceals from government an event which was of a nature to excite their vigilance. He conceals it when even Pichegru is called publicly to the councils of the British ministry, when with a degree of éclat he unites himself to the enemies of France.

"Government would not see in his silence any thing but the fear of an avowal which would have humiliated him, in the same manner as they had been in his absence from public affairs in his equivocal connections, and in his more than indifferent speeches, only ill humour and vain discontent.

"General Moreau, who was liable to suspicion because he treated fearfully with the enemy of his country, who upon this more than legitimate suspicion, would have been arrested at any other epoch, was suffered to enjoy in tranquillity his honors and immense fortune, and the benefits of the republic.

"Yet events pressed; Lajollais, the friend & confidant of Pichegru, goes secretly from Paris to London, returns from London to Paris, carries to Pichegru the ideas of general Moreau, brings back to general Moreau the ideas and designs of Pichegru and his associates. The brigands of Georges prepare in the very city of Paris all that is necessary to the execution of their common projects.

"A spot is fixed upon between Dieppe and Triport remote from all unseafaced and all superintendence, where the brigands of England, conducted by the English ships of war, were to land without being perceived, where they were to find men bribed to receive them, men paid to guide them during the night from station to station agreed upon, to bring them to Paris.

"At Paris an asylum is prepared for them, in houses hired behind hand, where are truly guardians; they have them in several quarters, in several streets, at Chaillot, in the Rue de la Paix, in the Faubourg Marceau, in the ———.

"A first landing is effected—it was Georges, with eight of his brigands.

"In the early part of this month, a third landing is effected; it is Pichegru, Lajollais, Armand, Gaillard, the brother of Raoul, Jean Marie, one of the first confidants of Georges, and some other brigands of that kind. Georges with Joyau, called d'Assar, St. Vincent, and Picot, called le Petit, precede this debarkation—the union is effected at the farm of la Poterie.

"A fourth landing is expected. The vessels are in sight; but contrary winds prevent their approach; but a few days passed since they made reconnoitering signals.

"Georges and Pichegru arrived at Paris; they are lodged in the same house, surrounded by some thirty brigands, commanded by Georges. They see general Moreau; we know the place, the day, the hour where the first conference is held. A second rendezvous was agreed upon, and does not take place. A third, a fourth, took place in the very house of Gen. Moreau.

"This appearance of Georges and Pichegru at Paris, these conferences which General Moreau are established by incontestable and multiplied proofs. The steps of Georges and Pichegru are followed from house to house to those who assisted in the debarkation; those who in the dead of night, conducted them from port to port; those who gave them an asylum in Paris, their confidants, accomplices—Lajollais their principal go-between, and Gen. Moreau are seized. The effects and the papers of Pichegru are seized, and the police is following his steps with great activity.

"England wished to overturn the government and by overturning it, to effect the ruin of France, and the abandonment of it to ages of civil war and confusion. But to overthrow a government supported by the affection of thirty millions of the citizens, and surrounded by a strong brave and faithful army, was a task above the power of England and of Europe; hence England did not pretend to effect it, but by the assassination with the shade of a man whom the remembrance of his services still defended.

"I must add, that the citizens ought to feel no uneasiness. The greater part of the brigands are arrested, the rest have fled, and are warmly pursued by the police. No class of citizens, no branch of the administration is stained by a single suspicion.

"I shall not give more ample details in this report; you have seen all the papers; you will direct that all be placed under the eye of justice.

"The Grand Judge, Minister of Justice.

(Signed)

"REGNIER."

NEW YORK, April 18.

Captain Sheffield of the Schooner Temperance arrived at this port yesterday from Guadaloupe, informs that on the 17th ult. an English letter of marque, having been taken by the French and brought into Guadaloupe, was afterwards sent out by the English. Previous to the French quitting her they applied a match to the magazine, which was not perceived by the English; and after getting a little distance from the harbor she was blown up with a terrible explosion. Two English letters of marque, with valuable cargoes, were brought into Guadaloupe by the French, about the 15th ult. one of which was taken after an action of eight hours with a French privateer of eighteen guns and a complement of men: the letter of marque has only 16 men.—The privateer had fifteen men killed.

April 19.
The British Packet, which arrived here yesterday from Halifax, left Falmouth on the 13th March, and brings London papers of the 10th, one day later than our advices via Boston. They contain nothing interesting, in addition to what we have before given, excepting the following articles, which we copy from a paper of the latest date received at this office.

London, March 10.
The Royal Assent was last night given by commission to several Bills in the House of Lords. On this occasion Lord Fitzwilliam expressed some doubts as to the regularity of the proceeding, the necessary information with respect to the state of his Majesty's health not having been obtained. The Lord Chancellor, with much apparent agitation, said, he was perfectly aware of the caution and circumspection which so grave and important a subject required; and under that impression he assured the Noble Earl, that in venturing to procure the assent of his Majesty to the commission, he had proceeded with fear and trembling. Not confiding entirely in the reports of the Physicians, he had solicited and obtained a personal interview with the Monarch, which had been repeated, and in the course of which he held much conversation with his Majesty relative to the nature of the bills included in the commission; the result of which was, that the whole of them obtained the Royal Assent. Of the responsibility attached to his official situation, his lordship professed himself fully aware; and, feeling the entire force of that responsibility, he had acted upon it on the present occasion. After this unequivocal assurance of his competency of his Majesty to the exercise of his kingly functions, no reasonable doubt can be entertained of the favorable progress made by his Majesty.

BULLETIN.
March 10—afternoon.—We continue to entertain a favorable opinion of his Majesty's recovery. Signed as usual.

On the 8th March, the Russian Ambassador waited on Lord Hawkebury, to know the cause of the embargo; which was explained to his satisfaction.

The British sloop of war Wolverine was appointed on the 9th ult. to convey out the Newfoundland trade.

Dover March 9.
The loudest firing heard here this [war] has prevailed all to-day on the French coast. Some of the houses shake with it, and it is not doubted to be chiefly bomb firing. It continues as I write this, but no intelligence relative to it has arrived. Probably a large squadron of vessels of all descriptions, which went out of the Downs yesterday evening, are engaged with the enemy, and as the wind is off the French coast, and very light, there cannot be a more favorable opportunity for vessels to stand in with the tide. Whether they are trying to sink any vessels or not, this is not a trifling engagement.

BALTIMORE, April 20.

Arrived, the Hamburg ship Oporto Packet, from Liverpool.

Also, schr. Paragon, Bishop from Cape Fran. con. Left brig Two Brothers, Finigan, of Baltimore, to sail next day; Antelope, Cushman, of do. Mary, West, of do. and schr. Fanny Glavelry of do.

Arrived this morning, schr. Abigail, Rudyard from Savannah. Sailed in company with the sloop Akery, Starfish, for Norfolk. The brig Happy Couple, Starks, arrived the day before, capt. R. failed. Left brig Eliza and Mary Starr for New York, in a few days; brig Dispatch, Adams, of Boston, to sail in 6 days; and the schr. Hope, Geer, from Baltimore.

Also, schooner Susannah, Forrester from Charleston.

Also, brig Ann, Fairchild, from New York.

Also, schooner Eagle, Abbotts from Charleston.

Also, schr. Hornet, Long, from Trinity Mar. tinique.

The above schooner was navigated here from Martinique, by the capt. and a boy about 14 years old. The rest of the crew had been taken out by a British frigate, which cut her out of Martinique, and sent her to Antigua, where she was cleared and returned to Martinique.

Also, ship Diana, Holbrook, from Liverpool.

March 12, lat. 56, long. 28, 30, spoke the ship Union of Charleston, for Liverpool, out 23 days. March 14, lat. 45, 4, long. 48, 30, spoke brig George Washington, of Berwick, from Savannah to Liverpool. Same day spoke ship Thames, capt. Paddock, from Savannah to Dieppe; who put on board the capt. and two sailors belonging to the sloop Mary and Sally, of Ipswich, for Richmond, whom he had taken off the wreck 9 days before, in lat 33, 59, long 64. April 1, lat. 37, 30, long 64, 30, spoke ship —, capt. Nyne, of Plymouth, from Limerick for Philadelphia, out 35 days. April 10, lat. 36, 33, long. 72, spoke brig Lydia, of Alexandria, from Guadaloupe, bound to New York, out 20 days. April 11, lat. 37, 9, long 73, 30, spoke brig Eagle, of Grenada, from Barbadoes, for Norfolk, out 63 days; supplied her with 100 wt. of bread. April 13, lat. 36, long. 69, 30, spoke ship Logan of New York, from Savannah to France, 4 days out.

TUESDAY, APRIL 24.

New-Hampshire Election.

The Portsmouth Oracle gives the following return of votes for Governor—Gillman 12,124, Langdon 12,026 It is not stated whether the return is complete.

The Spaniards will not permit the inhabitants on Tombigbee river, to export their produce to New-Orleans, unless they pay a duty of twelve and a half per cent. at the Mobile. It is thought at New-Orleans, that the American government, as an act of justice to their citizens, ought to impose a similar duty on all their exportations to the Pensacola and Mobile, which would perhaps restore the Spaniards to a more equitable line of conduct.

From Isle of France, Dec. 28, 1803.

"Bordeaux wine at this moment is 65 dols. per cask. Marseilles soap 70 cents per lb. Olive oil 1 dollar per bottle.—Flour 11 to 12 dols. Dried codfish from 20 to 25 dols. per cwt. Salmon, mackerel and other salt provisions also dear. Coffee is up to 14 1-2 dols. per bale. Sugars continue at their old price, say from 3 50 to 3 dols. per cwt. Indigo has fallen from 10 to 15 per cent. Cotton 30 cents lb. Cloves 50 cents lb. Salt beef and pork 40 dols. per bbl.

"The duty of export on coffee, shipped in Neutrals, is 1 dol. a bale, on brown sugars, 30 cents, on clayed 45 cents, on indigo 100 cents, cotton 20 cents, cloves 60, and ebony wood 100 cents. If any of these productions are carried directly to France, and landed there, will be exonerated from the said duty, on producing a certificate to be delivered here.

"Business at the Isle of France, is in general on a more critical footing, than it has been since my residence in the country, owing to the heavy duties imposed by the government, on goods shipped in any other than French vessels. Numerous failures, to a large amount, have lately taken place."

The London papers, from which the articles, published in our last, were extracted, furnish a variety of speculation, on the subject of what is termed the conspiracy of Moreau, sufficiently demonstrative of the innocence of the accused, and of the inextinguishable jealousy and hatred of Bonaparte to every Frenchman of virtue and talents. To what lengths the leaders in this new scheme of revolution dare extend their sanguinary and ambitious projects, or to what point they are particularly directed, beyond the removal of a single individual, we know not; but it is pretty certain, that the friends of Moreau will never consent, without a struggle, to see him dragged to the scaffold or driven in exile to some sickly and inhospitable shore.

(Boston Gazette.)

Extract of a letter from a gentleman of respectability in St. Thomas's, to his friend in New York, dated the 24th March.

"Captain Jones of Charleston (S. C.) arrived here the 21st instant, from Guadaloupe, which place he left the 17th instant, and says that several prizes has been carried in there, seven arrived three days before he left it; one was the ship Sarah of Liverpool, from the coast of Africa with 333 slaves, one ship of twenty guns taken by a privateer of ten guns, which carried; the ship after the third attempt to board her; the French lost their first lieutenant, second badly wounded and a great number killed; the ship made an obstinate resistance—in fact the slaughter was great on both sides; a ship from London & a ship from Demerara, and three others; a great number of American vessels there; produce low & plenty, he says their privateers treat the Americans in general politely, and never oblige them to take out their boats at sea having lately received orders to that effect, and treat the American flag with great respect.

After the report of the Grand Judge to the French Legislative Body on the pretended conspiracy, the president expressed his regret that so brave and distinguished an officer, as Gen. Moreau, should be implicated in a plot. The laws, he said, would decide his guilt or innocence.

In the opening of the session of the tribunate, Moreau (brother of the General) interrupted the proceedings by a request to be heard—He then said,

"You have heard the report made against General Moreau. I cannot see without sentiments of the liveliest melancholy, attempts made for a long time to calumniate a man who has rendered important services to the republic, and who has not the liberty of defending himself. I declare to the whole nation, that my brother is innocent of the atrocities imputed to him. I demand his trial. It will be easy for him to show his innocence. I affirm that all which has been said of him is an infamous calumny."

Curse said, "our colleague's is a just emotion,"—On which Monreau rejoined, "It is no fine emotion—it is the expression of the truth and indignation," and instantly left the hall.

The Senate Legislative Body and Tribunate offered their congratulation to the First Consul: Who in reply said,

"Since the day when I arrived at the Chief Magistracy, a great number of conspiracies have been formed against my life. Nursed in camps, I have never given any importance to danger; they have inspired me with no fear."

In the new play of the Soldier's Daughter, received with very great applause lately in London, Mrs. Jordan in the epilogue, drew forth reiterated peals. The idea of raising a female army of reserve, must have an excellent effect, and the materials of which this amazonian host was to be composed, excited considerable merriment—the following will amuse our female readers:

"While glory animates each mortal nerve Should British women from the contest swerve? No—

We'll form a female army of reserve; And class them thus—Old maids are pioneers—Widows, sharp shooters—Wives are fusiliers; Maids form battalions, that's all under twenty, And as for light troops, we have them in plenty: Vixens the trumpet blows, Scolds beat the drum, When thus prepared, what enemy dare come? Those eyes that even Britons could enslave, Would serve to light poor Frenchmen to their grave.

We'll humble France—since British women can A firelock handle, as they do a fan?"

NOTICE,

To the Stockholders of the Marine Insurance Company of Alexandria:

WHEREAS, under the present act of incorporation of this Company, the Directors do not conceive themselves at liberty to extend their insurances to Houses, Goods and Household Furniture, against FIRE, and believing it would be greatly to the benefit of the Company to make such insurances: The President and Directors of the said Marine Insurance Company have therefore determined to call a meeting of the said Stockholders, to be held on the second Tuesday in June next, at the Court House in Alexandria, to consider of a proposition then to be laid before them, of petitioning Congress at their next meeting, to engraft an additional clause on their present charter, authorizing them to insure houses, household furniture and goods, wares and merchandise against Fire.

By Order of the President and Directors.
J. B. Nickolls, Secry.
Insurance Office, April 24, 1804.

Form of a Power to Vote by Proxy.

I, ———, do hereby empower ——— for me and in my name, to attend a meeting of the Stockholders of the Marine Insurance Company of Alexandria, to be held in Alexandria, aforesaid, on the second Tuesday in June next, and for me, and in my name, to agree or disagree to the proposition of extending insurance to houses, household furniture, and goods wares, and merchandise, as shall appear most advisable.

To be subscribed by two witnesses.
Mr. Green, of Frederickburgh, and Mr. Davis, of Richmond, are desired to publish the above.

This lottery has been authorized by the legislature of Virginia, for the laudable purpose of erecting a seminary of learning in or near the metropolis of this State. With this view it is contemplated to raise 20,000 dollars, and 2,000 dollars in addition, for defraying the expenses attendant on drawing the lottery. Citizens of the first respectability have been selected as trustees, and they have pledged themselves to use their utmost exertions to carry it into effect. The scheme has the advantage of giving to each adventurer, a chance for some very large prizes, whilst the proportion of prizes to blanks, is so great as to invite the friends of the intended institution to partake of the lottery, with very little risk of their becoming losers.
The treasurer of this State is to be appointed to receive the money for the tickets as they are sold, and to pay the amount of the prizes to the fortunate adventurers. It is believed that the above considerations will induce a rapid sale of tickets and the drawing will commence as soon as a sufficient number shall be sold to authorize it—which it is believed will be on the second Monday in December next.
Richmond, January 31, 1804. eo

DISTILLERY AND MILL,
Late the Property of General GEORGE WASH-INGTON of Mount Vernon, situated on a navigable creek within nine miles of Alexandria.
This Distillery has five large Stills and a Boiler erected upon the late improved plan, with sheds for raising and fattening Hogs, also stalls
for thirty Bees.
In point of situation none can exceed it, the easy access to Maryland, will always ensure the greatest abundance of grain for carrying on the distilling business in its most extensive scale, independent of its own neighbourhood, which has always been able to supply it. The mill will require some repairs, which will be done at the proprietor's expense; she has manufactured large quantities of Flour, and may easily be made to do again: To this mill is a cooper's shop, and a comfortable dwelling house. Application to be made to the subscriber, near the spot.
